THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1907.

Ganderbone's Sept. Forecast.

Copyright 1907 by C. H. Rieth.

The old school bell is soon to ring, the poets all arise and sing, the frost will soon displace the dew, and the wind jamb through the beek a-bor. Untutored youth with tears of brine, returneth sadly to the mine, the new schoolma'am prepares to whack the bad boys where their pants are slack.

The football player lets his hair fall into Autumn unrepair, And the more athletic college cops The students with their largest mops.

The moon will be full on the 21st, and the password for the month will be "Soak Standard Oil." Everybody will run a little harder for president Mr. Bryan's smoke will continue to be an interesting spectacle, Mr. Roosevelt will drop a wasp into the hip pocket of Mr. Taft and that lag-gard will move up a couple of places in the race. Mr. Fairbanks will continue to pass the grand stand every seven seconds sucking, buttermilk with a nipple out of his pneumatic shirt front. The war with Japan will sleep fretfully, and Uncle Sam will sit by the cradle crooning soft lullabies and giving paregoric with a funnel.

The coming county fair is billed, The big prize hog is corned and swilled.

The pumpkin that will lift the prize Is watched with proud and hopeful eyes,

The family mare to win the pot Is training for the county trot.

The autumnal equinox will come in on time on the 24, and Mr. Harri-man will absorb all the water that falls to use in floating stocks for development of our great natural resources. The Standard Oil Company will place a twenty-year 4 per cent mortgage upon the earth and will pay the $29,400,000 fine imposed by Judge Landis. Senator Beveridge will end his honeymoon abroad and return to the affairs of the Republic, which will restore that feeling of security.

The summer girl—romantic thing!—will homeward come upon the wing and show her neighbors for a week where some man bit her on the cheek. The freckles on her arms (and legs?) resemble those on turkey eggs, and the neighborhood will bet ten per the men were only joshing her.

The lucky wives of millionaires Will put up jam and pickle pears. But most of us, denied these boons, Will pass the winter full of prunes.

Some red-hot sealing-wax alack, will fly down Nancy's tender back, exploring where the flesh is bare, and three shrill screams will pierce the air. The men a-washing at the pump will hasten thither on the jump, but Nancy, mid the fruit o'ertuned, will not divulge where she is burned.

President Roosevelt, fresh from Oyster Bay, will issue on the 20th a proclamation officially opening the oyster season. Turnips and football players will run to tops. White duck trousers will begin to migrate. A comet will make one-night stands in the north-east sky. The weather and politicians will become very agreeable. Nature, which has been in the nude for the outdoor summer painting season, will put on a thin gossamer, and the Corn Husker's Union will promulgate a new wage scale, by which they will get the corn and the farmer the husks.

The boys on Saturday are loose. To stain their hands with walnut juice,

The cider swollen apples drip, The pig squeals for a morning nip, The billy goat by Autumn cheered Lets cool winds frolic with his beard.

Summer excursion tourists will come home in a chair car with their skull grass full of carbon mites, the aisle full of braided legs, and the save tooth chair back embossing the name of the railroad on their spines. The Big Dipper will appear in the heavens upside down will encourage Prohibition to resume his war paint and extend the booze drouth. John Barleycorn will return to his guns with a Booker Washington tint under both eyes and his pants torn, and the Kentucky Colonel will toss in his mint bed while Carrie Nations rides a night-mare through the window of his boudoir.

The cotton field with boll and stem Are beckoning to dusky men, And soon from cotton seeds we'll boil The pure imported olive oil. The Greeks begin their year in September. Our Labor Day was their New Year's Day. They did this because their families spent the Summer at the seashore at considerable expense, while the men played poker at home at more expense. This left the Greeks badly in the hole, and the only way they could get out was to have the new year begin September 1st and swear off drinking and smoking at that time. This enabled them to save in September what we save in January, and was a much better plan than ours.

Cheer up, cheer up, the summer's o'er, the piping quail is up at four, September sweet is on the job, and the green corn ripens on the cob.

October crisp will soon be here With softly-falling leaf and sere, With frosty morn and hunter's moon And pumpkin pie, not yet but soon.

AN EXTINCT ANIMAL.

The Saber Toothed Tiger Was a Formidable Creature.

The most remarkable of all the extinct feline animals are those known to naturalists as the saber toothed cats or tigers, a group comprising the greater part of all the fossil forms. They date back to the earliest times of which we know anything about the family in North America and reach down to the time of man himself. A large and powerful species described from the Indian Territory by Cope lived contemporaneously with the hairy mammoth, as evidenced by the commingling of their skeletons. There can be little or no question but that the hairy mammoth was contemporaneous with man in North America as well as in Europe. Its geological range is from the close of the eocene to the latter part of the pleistocene.

The chief peculiarity of the animal is the extraordinary elongated canine teeth. The tail is of unusual length and the legs are short. The animal measures about seven feet in length aside from the tail. The lower jaws have a downward projection in front, due to a flange-like widening of the jawbones, which doubtless served as a protection to the teeth, preventing their injury or loss. In some of the larger forms from South America this flange was not present, while the canine teeth were even more elongated than is the case with this species, attaining a length of over six inches and protruding far below the jaws when closed.

A Flight of Erratic Metaphor.

It was in a police court in India. The client of the babu lawyer was a woman accused of assault and battery, and the attorney, attacking the opposing lawyer, delivered himself as follows: "My learned friend with mere wind from a teapot thinks to browbeat me from my legs. I only seek to place my bone of contention clearly in your honor's eye. My learned friend vainly runs amuck upon the sheet anchors of my case. My poor client has been deprived of some of her valuable leather (skin), the leather of her nose. Until the witness explains what became of my client's nose leather he cannot be believed. He cannot be allowed to raise a castle in the air by beating upon a bush."

A Man's Name.

The law allows a man to call himself by any name he wants to and to spell it in any way he likes. You may change your name as often as you like without violating any law. The reason for getting one's name changed by a court or act of the legislature is to preserve the record in case it should ever become necessary or desirable to establish one's identity under the new and the old name.—St. Louis Republic.

The Limit of Life

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period that determines its duration seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 years is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by the Pickens Drug Co. Druggists, 50c.

Japanese Flower Decoration.

In the Japanese method of flower decoration, to become a master of which a man must study for at least fourteen years, seven years of hard work making him only fairly proficient, only few flowers are used. One beautiful bough is considered ample aesthetic food for a day. The Japanese know that only one beautiful object at a time can be appreciated, and they aim at placing that object in perfect relation to its surroundings. A vase of flowers in a Japanese house is the principal thing in the room, near which the chief guest of the evening is seated.

"REGULAR AS THE SUN"

is an expression as old as the race. No doubt the rising and setting of the sun is the most regular performance in the universe, unless it is the action of the liver and bowels when regulated with Dr. King's New Life Pills. Guaranteed by the Pickens Drug Co. Druggists, 25c.

The Anchovy.

The little anchovy is a fish of no small importance, being very largely used in various sauces, besides the numbers that are preserved in pickle. It is common in the Mediterranean and is also found on our coasts. The upper jaw of this fish is longer than the lower one. The entire length of the fish is usually from four to five inches, but it has been seen measuring upward of seven inches.

REMEDY FOR DIARRHOEA NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL.

"I want to say a few words for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I have used this preparation in my family for the past five years and have recommended it to a number of people in York county and have never known it to fail to effect a cure in any instance. I felt that I cannot say too much for the best medicine of the kind in the world."—S. Jamison, Spring Grove, York county, Pa. This remedy is for sale by the Pickens Drug Co.

A woman worries until she gets wrinkles, then worries because she has them. If she takes Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea she would have neither. Bright, smiling face follows its use. 35c Tea or Tablets.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

Stops the cough and heals the lungs.

The Neck of the Bottle.

On the neck of a wine bottle a ridge can usually be seen. This ridge has a purpose to serve. It is not made merely to decorate the neck of the bottle. When the bottle is opened and its contents have to be poured into a glass the ridge is adjusted to the top of the glass, so that the wine cannot trickle down the side of the bottle and then on to the tablecloth. — London Telegraph.

Old maids would be scarce and hard to find. Could they be made to see. [find, Now grace and beauty is combined By using Rocky Mountain Tea.

Friend—Can't you give me a tip on stocks? Broker—Yes, but in consideration of our long friendship I won't.—Town and Country.

HAD AN AWFUL TIME.

But Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Cured Him.

It is with pleasure that I give you this unsolicited testimonial. About a year ago when I had a case of the measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time and had it not been for the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—Sam H. Gwin, Concord, Ga. For sale by Pickens Drug Co.

A ROYAL PARTY.

One at Which the Question of Precedence Was Not Raised.

Precedence, always a ticklish matter, is doubly ticklish where an oriental nation is concerned. When George IV. was regent there was a terrible to-do at court because the Persian ambassador claimed precedence over all the other ambassadors. This not being allowed, he refused to go to court at all. Tit for tat, he was informed that he would not be received at Carlton House, neither would the ministers receive his visits. Sackcloth and ashes at the Persian embassy. Soon afterward the prince regent met the shah's representative at Lord Salisbury's. "Ah, I hope you are better," he said diplomatically. "Oh, sir, I am very well," was the answer, "but I am sorry that I offended your royal highness by not going to court." And he explained how it had all come about.

"Now, sir," the ambassador went on, "my sovereign, he tell me to go first, and your congress, about which I know nothing, say I must go last. Now, sir, this very bad for me when I go back to Persia." And he pointed with dismal significance to his head. "Well, my good friend, never mind it now. It does not signify," said the regent, with that cheerfulness natural to a man who has not a sovereign waiting to nip off his head. "Oh, yes, sir," protested the Persian, "but your royal highness is still angry with me, and you have not invited me to your party tomorrow night." The regent laughed heartily, saying, "As a matter of fact, I was only going to have a few children to dance, but if you would like to come I shall be glad to see you." And the wise man of the east did go and wrote, vastly proud, to his sovereign that he had gone to the ball, the only ambassador invited. Not unnaturally he did not burden the shah with the particulars as to how this signal distinction came to be conferred upon him and Persia.—St. James' Gazette.

An Encore.

During the elections in Ireland a bygone year Colonel James P. Robertson was quartered at Ennis. A riot was expected, and he was requested by a town magistrate to remain under arms in case of trouble.

It was a very still summer evening, and a lieutenant of the company was amusing himself at his harmonium and was singing in a good voice. Just as he finished one of his songs—by that time it was well into the night—a thundering knock came on the outer gates.

"Who comes there?" shouted the sentry at the top of his voice, and every man in barracks jumped up and seized his arms. In a moment there was dead silence, the men eagerly listening to know what was to follow.

"Who comes there?" again the sentry shouted.

And a small voice outside the gate replied.

"If ye please, Mither SENTRY, will ye ask th' gintleman to sing that once again?"

"The indignant sentry's reply," says Colonel Robertson in his reminiscences of soldiering, "was drowned in the shouts of merriment from my men."

Torture.

"The Carthaginian mercenaries," he said, "incensed their prisoners in a cement that as it hardened contracted. You can't imagine how uncomfortable this was."

"Oh, yes, I can," she answered. "I once had on a tight bathing suit when it began to shrink." — Los Angeles Times.

Plenty of Old Ones.

Mr. Chipps (looking up from the paper)—The doctors have discovered another new disease. Mrs. Chipps—Well, I wish they'd stop looking for new diseases long enough to find a cure for my old rheumatism. — London Telegraph.

Envy.

"Think of the patient, uncomplaining industry of the busy bee," said the man who makes perfunctory efforts to be cheerful.

"The busy bee," replied the business man, "has no occasion to complain. He is one of the few manufacturers who are not bothered constantly by the tariff or the pure food laws."—Washington Star.
